With a slight delay, we're sharing with you our April members update, the newsletter specifically created for you, our active member societies and General Council, to stay up-to-date on what's going on at ISE.

Please share any news or updates relating to your society, as well as other suggestions, with office@isendo.org and we will happily share the information.

Our plans for the ISE Global Education Hub in 2019!

We're looking for 2 ISE Education Editors

Would you like to be one of the pillars of the International Society of Endocrinology's educational strategy and help enhance educational opportunities for endocrinologists around the world?

Are you ready to be part of the first ISE Editorial Committee that will help further ISE's educational activities?

We're looking for 2 proactive and well-connected Education Editors in the field who are willing to take part of this initiative on a voluntary basis for a 1-year term.

New section: Ask the Expert

We are proud to present our first new section on the ISE Global Education Hub: Ask the Expert. Get access to exclusive interviews about current and hot topics in endocrinology explained by the experts themselves.

Get the opportunity to post your questions and comments to the expert or comment on your peers' posts to keep the conversation going.

In our first interview, Dr Richard Ross answers our questions about his recent talk on Endocrine Replacement in Cancer Survivors; don't miss it!
